- a. Do you have a contingency plan for your animal(s) in a crisis? If so, what is it?
- b. As we have seen during hurricanes to global pandemics, zoos, factory farms, and shelters don't have adequate contingency plans. What are some ways you think places can better plan?
- c. Given the size of industrial animal agriculture facilities, do you think it is realistic for them to have contingency plans for natural disasters and other crises?
- d. Do you think it should be up to the specific company/organization to create contingency plans or should there be a federal/state/industry level contingency plan that applies to all?
